

Companions:

This is the season when the morning star in the east is at it's brightest and its light gives us hope and peace. Let us follow the light and reflect on the guiding principles sent to us from God above. Take time to rejuvenate your soul and re-connect with family and friends while we celebrate this season of joy.

Don't forget those who are less fortunate than us, exercise compassion, charity and goodwill to all around.

I wish you and your family a very Merry Christmas and the best in the New Year!
